

THE UNIVERSITY OF SCRANTON
COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES
WORLD LANGUAGES & CULTURES

About the Program

Knowledge of world languages is essential in today's global society. Our world languages & cultures programs prepare students to become proficient in a language, a literature and a culture other than English and American so that they may lead empowered and productive lives as global citizens.

Outcomes & Opportunities

- Many students study abroad through sponsored, faculty-led trips. To date, our students have studied in 41 countries and six continents. While abroad, many students engage in community service projects and/or complete internships.
- A large percentage of Scranton's world language and international language-business majors have found employment in areas directly related to their majors.
- Some students now work for the New York State Senate, Raymond Weil Importer (New York), the Dickinson Constant Company (Northern France), Putnam Investments (Boston), AXA (Paris, France), EY LLC and the U.S. Foreign Service.
- Some of our graduates have served in the Jesuit Volunteer Corps at home or abroad, volunteered with the Peace Corps and Catholic Relief Services in Africa and completed Fulbright scholarships in Germany, Morocco and Brazil. Other students are pursuing graduate studies, law school and medical school.

¹ Students who begin language at the Advanced (311) level will take 6 fewer credits in the major and 6 more credits in the cognate or free elective area in either the junior or senior year. In their second year, they will choose advanced language electives.

² French majors are required to take FREN 320. Spanish majors will take SPAN 320 and SPAN 321 and three of the following four courses: SPAN 313, SPAN 314, SPAN 330, or SPAN 331.
