

THE UNIVERSITY OF SCRANTON
COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES

HISTORY

About the Program

The past has shaped our current world and has impacted every community and individual. Through the study of history, we learn about and evaluate human actions, ideas, goals and relationships. A historical perspective enables us to place politics, scientific discoveries, cultural advancements and global events in context.

Outcomes & Opportunities

- Independent research, with a faculty advisor, is a vital part of the history degree for many students. Students are also encouraged to submit papers for publication or present at student or association conferences.
- Scranton has an impressive number of graduates who receive Fulbright fellowships or teaching assistantships throughout the world.
- Many students pursue advanced degrees in history, law or business. Others find employment in a variety of fields.
- Some of the prestigious schools which have admitted our recent history graduates include: Boston College, College of William and Mary and Duke University.
- Some of the organizations in the public and private sectors employing Scranton graduates include:
  - C-SPAN
  - Yale University Press
  - United States Memorial Holocaust Museum
