

ABOUT THE MAJOR

Proficiency in world languages is essential in today's global society. This major equips students with skills in language, literature, and culture beyond English and American traditions, empowering them to thrive as global citizens. Graduates apply their language expertise in diverse fields, from education and business to diplomacy and international relations.

OUTCOMES & OPPORTUNITIES

- Students expand their global perspective through faculty-led study abroad trips. While abroad, they often engage in community service projects or complete internships.
- Students secure careers in fields directly related to their studies, with graduates working for the New York State Senate, Raymond Weil Importer, Dickinson Constant Company, Putnam Investments, AXA, EY LLC, and the U.S. Foreign Service.
- Graduates have served with the Jesuit Volunteer Corps, Peace Corps, and Catholic Relief Services, as well as Fulbright scholarships in Germany, Morocco, and Brazil. Others pursue graduate studies, law school, and medical school.
